During the event, PRCA students took the initiative to explain the significance of wearing seatbelts and helmets to the citizens. They highlighted the role of seatbelts and helmets in minimizing the risk of accidents and injuries. For pedestrians, the students emphasized the importance of using sidewalks and encouraged crossing roads only at designated zebra crossings. The attendees were educated about the proper usage of signals and adherence to speed limits, promoting responsible driving practices.

The students also provided valuable advice to citizens, including slowing down while entering main roads, crossings, intersections, and corners. They stressed the importance of using appropriate signals when turning, slowing down, or yielding to other vehicles. Additionally, they advocated against using horns in designated silent zones and discouraged the use of mobile phones while on the road due to the potential life-threatening consequences.

To enhance the impact of the awareness campaign, some students held slogan boards to spread key messages effectively. Two students, Ishwari Tilekar and Shrutika Kokate, even learned hand signals used by traffic police officers and assisted them in managing traffic flow during the event.

The campaign aimed to raise awareness about the importance of maintaining a clean environment for the betterment of public health and well-being.
